"Aladdin" comes to Elstad soon

Aladdin and His Magic Lamp, a colorful fantasy set in ancient Bagdad, will appear on the Elstad Auditorium stage April 21-22, 1983. Gilbert C. Eastman, playwright and director, says that "this is a production that will entertain children from 6 to 60 years old."

Aladdin is the ninth annual children's production of the Gallaudet Theatre Arts Department. The five morning performances for area school children were sold out weeks ago. Approximately 3,750 children, deaf and hearing, will be coming to the campus to see the play during the week of April 18-22.

Eastman explains that this is his first production in children's theatre and he chose the tale of Aladdin for its fantasy and potential for special effects. "It really struck my imagination as a wonderful tale. Jeff Grandel is designing the set and special effects and William Moses is designing the costumes," says Eastman.

"I read many scripts of children's plays and they didn't interest me. Then I found Andrew Lang's collection of stories of the Arabian Nights. Other scripts of Aladdin added animals and characters that were not in the original tale. I wanted to stick with the tale as it was passed down from generation to generation until it was finally written in the 19th century. Our production is directly written in sign language following the original tale. Other scripts played with words, ours plays with signs," explains Eastman. Vicki Brown will be working with readers who will present a simultaneous voice interpretation of the play.

Tickets for Aladdin and His Magic Lamp go on sale April 11. The theatre box office is open weekdays April 11-22 from 2-5 p.m. Tickets are $2 for students (includes Gallaudet and Sign Language students) and $3 for all others. Tickets may be ordered by mail. Please send a check payable to Gallaudet College Theatre and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Box Office Manager, Box 2303, Gallaudet College, Washington, D.C. 20002.

Packwood and Rowland host lunch for reps of national companies

Senator Bob Packwood (R-OR) and James Rowland, vice president of Union Carbide, recently hosted a luncheon for the Washington representatives of national companies. The luncheon's purpose was to recognize companies that have recruited Gallaudet students and alumni and supported the College through contributions.

Senator Packwood urged the other companies represented to establish a similar relationship with Gallaudet, calling it "the best investment in higher education in this country today."

As a member of the Gallaudet College Board of Fellows, Rowland represents the broad corporate community. At the luncheon, he described his experiences at Gallaudet and the mutual benefits of a relationship between the business community and the College.

Among the corporations recognized for their involvement with Gallaudet were:

American Broadcasting Company
Container Corporation of America
Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing
Prudential Insurance Company
Sears Roebuck and Company
Sperry Corporation
Standard Oil Company of Indiana
Texaco Inc.
Union Carbide
U.S. Steel Corporation
Weyerhaeuser Company

The luncheon was with a brief performance by the Gallaudet Dancers.

The Gallaudet Dancers entertain representatives of the business community at a recent luncheon.

Pew awards College $200,000

The Pew Memorial Trust has awarded a grant of $200,000 to Gallaudet College for the renovation of the Northwest Campus. This is the largest private contribution to date to the $7 million renovation.

The Pew Memorial Trust, located in Philadelphia, was created in memory of Joseph N. Pew, founder of Sun Oil Company, and his wife by their four surviving children.

The Pew grant brings the total of private funds raised for the renovation to $500,000. Other private donors to the new campus include the Philip L. Graham Foundation, U.S. Steel Corporation, C & P Telephone Company, the Riggs National Bank, William Randolph Hearst Foundation and scores of other local and national corporations and foundations.

An additional $500,000 is still being sought from private donors to complete the renovation in time for the fall semester.

New Videotapes

by Regina Koch

If you missed the movie "Star Trek: A Motion Picture" (#2040), now is your chance. The movie was recently added to the videotape collection at MSSD and features all the regulars from the television program. All Trekkie fans wouldn't want to miss this. In addition to the videotape, anyone interested in reading about Star Trek can find a book in the Popular collection in the Library (Popular 813.54 R63s, 1979).

Another addition to the videotape collection is the story of Donald Lang, a black deaf youth, portrayed in the television movie "Dummy" (#2043). This true life account tells of how Donald, illiterate and incapable of speech, suffered injustice after his arrest as a suspect in the murder of a Chicago prostitute. The Library also has a book with the same title written about this case by Ernest Tidyman. This can be found in the DEAF Collection (DEAF 345.7304 T5d, 1975).

A choice facing many new parents these days is whether or not the mother should return to work or stay at home with her young child. The videocassette, "The Guilty Madonnas" (#2036) discusses this issue. Through a combination of case studies and round-table discussions, it explores situations that are instructive for all parents contemplating the pros and cons of a mother going to work.

For those of you who wanted to see the television special "The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby" (#2031) but didn't have the chance to watch it, all nine hours of it are now part of the videotape collection. It features the Royal Shakespeare Company in the stage play adapted from the novel by Charles Dickens.

If you are interested in viewing these videotapes or others, call Television Cable Service at x5931 voice or x5932 TDD.

Rehabilitation grants

The Department of Education is inviting applications for new FY 1983 rehabilitation services and training discretionary grants funded under the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. Application deadline is May 9, 1983.

The following programs are accepting new grant applications. Applications for noncompeting continuations are being accepted for the experimental and innovative training project program and the state vocational rehabilitation program.

1. Rehabilitation Long-Term Training

Projects: $2,326,000 will be available to support training projects for the rehabilitation of physically and mentally handicapped individuals, especially the severely handicapped. 2. Rehabilitation Continuing Education Programs: $285,093 has been allocated to support regional training centers for rehabilitation personnel in Region IV. 3. State Vocational Rehabilitation Unit In-Service Training Program: approximately $1.43 million is available for special projects to train personnel employed by state vocational rehabilitation units in specific program areas. New projects will be funded in Region I, II, IV, V, VII, IX, and X.

For further information, contact the Office of Sponsored Research or Dr. Martin Spickler, Ph.D., Director, Division of Resource Development, Rehabilitation Services Administration, Office of Special Education and Rehabilitation Services, U.S. Department of Education, Switzer Building, Rm. 3221, 400 Maryland Ave. SW, Washington, D.C. 20202, 245-0075.

Grants available

The Division of Research is accepting applications for small research grants from the Faculty and Graduate Student Research Fund for spring and summer of 1983.

The fund was established to encourage research activities of faculty, staff and graduate students by covering some of the related costs of doing research. While the size of a grant varies with the individual project, most grants are between $500 and $1,000. A special review committee has been established to evaluate proposals and make recommendations.

The deadline for receipt of applications is May 1. For more information or application forms, stop by the Office of the Vice President for Research in Fay House or call x5030 voice or TDD.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Terry recently presented Gallaudet with a clock which hung in the office of the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gallaudet's office in New York. Shown from left are President Merrill, Leon Auerbach, Charles Terry, the Rev. Otto Berg, Mrs. Terry and David de Lorenzo of the Gallaudet Archives, where the clock has been placed.

by Carol Altstatt

Twelve elementary students studying in the Talented and Gifted (TAG) Program at KDES have begun publishing The Deaf Post, a monthly newspaper by and for the children of KDES. Gail Larabee, instructor in the TAG program, presented the idea to the students and they have pursued it with enthusiasm.

The students, 7-12 years old, do all the production for The Deaf Post. Gail Larabee said that she brushes up the final layout but the students do all of the layout and paste-up. "Within one year I expect the paper to be organized and developed by the students themselves," she said.

The 10-page Deaf Post, which began last December, includes department news, editorials, creative stories, comics, sports and news features from around KDES. Everyone on the student staff contributes articles and stories. Each student is given the opportunity to test his/her ability in all tasks of the paper. The staff of The Deaf Post meets once a week to concentrate on the paper. The students do most of the writing at home.

The students brainstorm on news in school and the world as they develop a new issue. They then choose their assignments and set a deadline. Other classmates (non-staff) are invited to submit articles. Once the articles are edited, the students type their articles on to an Apple computer. Gail Larabee and Pat Yates work with the students as they take the printouts and start the layout process.

The students on the staff of The Deaf Post are Tyson Mitchener, editor, Terry Giansanti, Myra Yanke, Raychelle Harris, Matthew Lockhart, Michael Kent, Karl Ewan, Mary Anne Seremeth, Michael Herberger, Erich Clark, Scott Hamn, and Kia Vallery.

The second issue of The Deaf Post sold for five cents per copy and the paper made three dollars. "I sold a copy to a visitor from Norway who gave me 15 cents and told me to keep the change," laughed one boy. Though inflation has pushed the cost of The Deaf Post up to 10 cents per copy, the student staff hopes that people from around Kendall Green will subscribe to the paper. If you are interested in getting copies of The Deaf Post, write to: T.A.G. c/o Gail Larabee, KDES PAS 3, or call x5262 or x5250.

MSSD students recently performed for 150 enthusiastic Middle School students at the Holton Arms School, a private girls' school in Bethesda, MD. The students are shown here with Performing Arts Instructor Tim McCarty. McCarty, Eric Malzkahn and Marcia Freeman performed a tap dance number, a scene from "The Ugly Duckling" and taught the students to sign a song from "South Pacific."

MSSD shows go on tour

The MSSD Performing Arts Department has several shows that are now available for touring.

For children, "African Folk Tales" is a 10-45 minute program. For high schools and adults, "The Ugly Duckling," a 45-minute program, is available, as well as "Dance Selections," which runs from 20 minutes to an hour.

Persons or organizations which might be interested in having MSSD students perform can call Tim McCarty, x5801. Cost for the shows varies. Basically, the department asks groups to cover the cost of transportation, room and board.

GCAA hosts banquet at CAID Convention

The Gallaudet College Alumni Association will host a banquet on June 27 as part of the 1984 Convention of American Instructors of the Deaf in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

If you're planning to attend the convention and would like more information about the banquet, contact Mary Anne Pugin, x5105 TDD.

MSSD performs "Babes in Arms"

The MSSD Performing Arts Department blossoms this spring with Rodger and Hart's "Babes in Arms," a fresh, captivating celebration of youth.

In this 1930s comedy, a group of talented, determined young actors is trying to stage an original revue. Their efforts are constantly thwarted by a hateful producer, an insufferable Southern playwright, a former child movie star and her overbearing stage mother. Talent, resolution and love win out and the show goes on, but not before the audience sees a lively performance with singing, dancing, signing and hilarity.

"Babes in Arms" will be performed May 5-8 and 11-14. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students. Tickets are going fast, so get yours now. For tickets and reservations, call 543-PLAY.

The Performing Arts Department is also seeking patrons and advertisements for its spring play program. Funds acquired through this campaign are an important part of the program's budget. All contributions are tax deductible.

If you're interested in being a patron or purchasing an ad, make a check out to MSSD Performing Arts or contact Tim McCarty at MSSD.

Presentations made at ASCD

The recent Annual Conference of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD) in Houston, TX included presentations and sessions by several persons on campus.

Edmond Skinski, chair of the Department of Educational Administration, and Frank Duffy of the same department attended the conference as part of a special information dissemination activity about the Gallaudet Administration program in various schools for the deaf and teacher training facilities in the southwest. They also participated in the annual meeting of the Council of Professors of Instructional Supervision. SEHS Dean Tom Landers disseminated information about various SEHS programs and established new professional contacts for the School.

Carolyn Cooper, a Kendall science teacher, presented a session on how a science program can be developed for a school. Betty Landish, in charge of professional development for Kendall, was involved in sessions related to in-service education and social studies curriculum improvement. Diane Adams from Pre-College Outreach staffed the special Gallaudet information booth at the conference exhibit area.

David Martin, coordinator of the Undergraduate Teacher Preparation Program, presented a paper involving a new model for teacher education curriculum and also was a member of the leadership team for a two-day "Action Lab" on the Development of Thinking Skills in Adolescent Learners.

In addition, several other College faculty attended special sessions on curriculum and supervision.

Post luncheons to be interpreted

For almost 40 years, The Washington Post has sponsored Book & Author Luncheons. Now, for the first time, interpreter services for hearing impaired persons will be available at the luncheons. The interpreters will be Francis Burton and Janet Bailey of Sign Language Associates.

"The Post is pleased to provide this service," said publisher Donald Graham. "Book & Author Luncheons are a long-standing tradition, offering book lovers the opportunity to gain greater insight into the art of creative and historic writing."

This year's spring luncheon will be held on Wednesday, April 20 at 12:30 p.m. in the Sheraton Hall of the Sheraton-Washington Hotel. The featured speakers are poet-author Maya Angelou, syndicated columnists George Will and Russell Baker and writer-lecturer Richard Rodriguez. Howard Simons, The Post's managing editor, will preside.

Tickets for the luncheon are $12.50. Reservations for interpreter services may be made by calling x5104 TDD or by mail to The Washington Post. If ordering tickets by mail, please request interpreter service seating.

To order tickets by mail, send a check payable to The Washington Post and a self-addressed stamped envelope to Book & Author Luncheon, Public Relations Department, The Washington Post, 1150 15th St. NW, Washington, D.C. 20071.

Doris Wilding of Gooding, Idaho, a Gallaudet freshman, was crowned Miss Deaf District of Columbia March 25 at the Miss Deaf D.C. Pageant held at the Elstad Auditorium. She was one of 10 contestants competing in the pageant. She will now be a contestant in the Miss Deaf America Pageant to be held in July, 1984 in Baltimore.

SEHS schedules faculty seminars

As a part of its ongoing program of faculty development, the School of Education and Human Services (SEHS) has scheduled two seminars for the spring semester. These seminars will deal with the effective use of Educational Technology and its potential for improving the teaching-learning process.

Ron Nomeland, chairman of the Department of Educational Technology, SEHS, will be organizing and providing the technical leadership for the development of these seminars. Also participating in the seminars will be representatives of the Department of Educational Technology.

The first session, scheduled for April 15, will deal with issues such as: What is Educational Technology? How can its use make you a more effective teacher? How does CER help the classroom teacher? Visits to CER, IDEC and related support areas are also being planned.

It is anticipated that these seminars will provide ample opportunity for questions and interaction between and among faculty members and the faculty of the Educational Technology program.

Mark your calendars and join the seminars if possible. The first seminar is April 15 from 9:30-11:30 a.m. in Room LE 60 of the Learning Center. The second seminar will be held May 6 from 9:30-11:30 a.m. in Room LE 60 of the Learning Center.

Educators Conference to be held Saturday

The Washington Regional Conference of Educators of the Hearing Impaired will hold its 3rd Annual Conference this Saturday, April 16. The event will be held at the Mamie D. Lee School, 100 Gallatin St. NE, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.

The conference will feature an address by Sylvia Willoughby, counselor for foreign and language minority students with the Prince George's County School System. She will speak on "Values and Cultures: Their Effect on our Preconceptions and Expectations of Others." During the day, working sessions composed of 20 participants will focus on one of several value-related topics.

The conference is sponsored cooperatively by Gallaudet's Pre-College Programs, hearing impaired programs in Alexandria City and Fairfax County, VA, District of Columbia, Montgomery and Prince George's counties in Maryland, the Maryland School for the Deaf and Virginia Schools for the Deaf in Hampton and Staunton.

For further information write to W.R.C.E.H.I., c/o Shelve McCoy, Mamie D. Lee School, 100 Gallatin St. NE, Washington, D.C. 20011.

Majors Fair Set

A dorm-wide program for freshmen, the Majors Fair, will be held this Saturday, April 16. It's being presented by peer advisors, senior peer advisors, student head resident advisors and student resident assistants of Krug and Cogswell Halls.

The Majors Fair will be held on Agatha Tiegel Hanson Plaza from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. All of the departments which have majors will have their faculty on hand to provide information and answer questions from students who want to make decisions about their majors. A picnic lunch will be served. All students on Kendall Green are invited to attend the event.

Speech

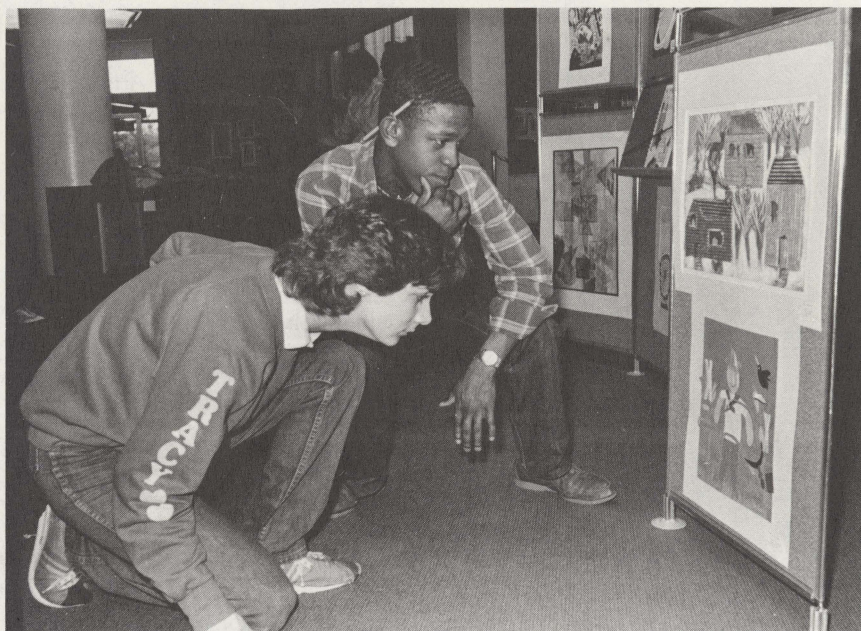

Copies of the recent Convocation address given by the Rev. Timothy Healy, president of Georgetown University, are available in the Alumni and Public Relations Office, Chapel Hall. Stop by or call x5100.

Letters

On Wednesday, March 23, those of us who park in the Field House lot arrived at work and discovered, because a Security guard was sitting in his car blocking the driveway and flashing the sign for the 6th Street parking lot, that our parking spaces had been pre-empted for Convocation guests.

Convocation—and other similar events—are surely planned far enough in advance to notify the campus community of specific parking restrictions. And it appears reasonable, under such circumstances, to allow open parking for those of us whose parking spaces are temporarily taken over by the Administration.

MSSD students Tracy Isaacs and Donald Harris look at art from World Around You's Creative Contest. The art, from hearing impaired students around the country, will be on exhibit in the MSSD lobby through April 15.

Creative Contest winners chosen

Hearing impaired students from across the country won money and prizes in this year's Creative Contest sponsored by World Around You, a national news publication for hearing impaired young people published by Pre-College Programs.

This year the Creative Contest had more entries than ever before—227 students entered the art category; 343 students entered the writing categories. Entries came from all over the United States.

This is the fourth year the Creative Contest has been held. "The calibre of the entries was outstanding," said Robert Davila, vice president for Pre-College Programs. "The judges had a tough decision. We are convinced that the Creative Contest has become a meaningful event in the lives of many young deaf students."

The grand prize writing winner, Stephanie Gemmil from the Michigan School for the Deaf, receives a trip to visit Gallaudet College and Washington, D.C. The grand prize art winner, Marie Carr from Seattle, WA, received a Schwinn 10-speed bicycle, courtesy of Schwinn and Pre-College Programs. First place winners in each of the writing categories—fiction, non-fiction and poetry—receive a $50 cash prize.

A reception was held to honor the participants and to view their work recently. The art work, which varies from batik to watercolor to pen and ink, and mixed media, will be on display in the MSSD lobby through April 15.

Judges in the Creative Contest were Rex Lowman of Gallaudet, Eric Malzkahn of MSSD, Muriel Strassler of the Deaf American, Mary Bavister of the Virginia School for the Deaf, Virginia Mecklenburg of the National Museum of American Art, Debbie Sonnenstrahl of Gallaudet's Fine Arts in Education, and Cathy Conn and William Harris of Duke Ellington High School.

Clean your carpets

Last month, On The Green ran a short article about the D.C. Chapter of the GCAA sponsoring a fundraising event in conjunction with Four Star Carpet Cleaners. The Chapter will receive 25% of the gross profit from every customer's carpet that is cleaned by Four Star, which is operated by alumnus and Chapter member Fred Orr.

Several persons called wanting their carpets cleaned in May rather than during the month of April. Arrangements have been made with Four Star to extend the fundraising period to May 31. However, all prospective customer's names must be submitted to Four Star by the end of April.

If you would like your carpets cleaned during the fundraising period, contact Mike Kaika, x5108 or Polly Peikoff, x5105. These persons will then forward your name to Four Star, which will call you to set up an appointment to measure your carpets and inform you how much it will cost.
